from Wilmington to Charleston, shorten the travel to New Orleans one day's time, facilitate the mails, and will bring the South in more immediate and direct communication with the North.

The position of this Road, its connections North and South, its easy grades, inche over thirty feet to the malle, freedom from curves, and charp construction, is such as to put it beyond the competition of any other line of road, for the immense infant travel between the North and New-Orleans. The greater part of this Road traverses the most populous and fertile portions of South Carehim, producing exition, corn. Re. in great abundance. Its local business alone will anout it banksomety.

The census of 1850 shows that the district of country which will be tributary to this Road, and dependent on it for transpertation to market, produced in 1849 seventy thousand bales of cotton, of an average weight cach of 450 hs. The Company has one million of available stock subscribed, most of which has been paid in and applied to construction, to which can be added at any time at the option of the Company, $200,000, subscribed by the State of North-Caro has on certain conditions.

It is estimated that the net annual profits will reach 12 percent, per annum.

About one-half of the entire line has been graded and bridged the cross-ties being in the course of delivery, and will be ready for the iron rails immediately.

The entire line is under contract for grading and bridging and in a forward stafe toward completion.

By thousand two hondred time from Manchester East will be completed and im operation in the Fall of this year, and the entire line to Wilmington early next year.

The management of this Road is in highly respectable and completed hands. No work in the South undertaken or projected meets with more public havor than this.

For further and more particular information we refer to a practed "Exhibit" eging full details of the Road and its affairs, which contains a Map of the line with its many consection, copies of the Bond and Morre igned by mail or otherwise, with any other information desired.

We deem the security a desirable one. The States of North and South Carolina, and the various corporations that the within their limits, which have been borrowers of mency, have uniformly and under the most adverse erroundances promptly met their pecuniary engagements. Public stationed in those States has always taken high ground in regard to punctual fulfillment of public and private pecuniary eligations.

The $300,000 will be disposed of absolutely and without reserve to the highest bodder.

Seried proposals, for any amount not less than $1,000, will be received at the office of the undersigned until 3 o clock on the 10th of July proximo.
